- Our service charge is % of the selling price/product price.(will vary any time)

We give the amount directly to the seller's bank /pay pal account after successful courier and the customer have no complaints about the product reducing our service charge from the selling price. If any customer have a problem with the product there is an option for return the product to corresponding seller/vendor then the total amount of the product price given back to the customer and the seller/vendor have no ability to payment for that product. So the seller/vendor takes the responsibilities and care about the products, packing and shipping. The courier charge and all other transporting are on the risk of seller/vendor and also pay the charges for that. Offer Loja.com has no responsibility for products and its shipping. If seller/vendor have any promotion/offer please inform and we listed that in the site
